Hongkong, July 14th, 1892. THE fatal accident which occurred vesterday morning on the Peak Tramway is much to be deplored. The sufferers by it were coolies engaged in repairing the track near the junction where the cars meet; the duty for a considerable time, we understand, and knew the work as thoroughly as routine panic about the deposits in these Banks. work of the kind can be known by constant practice. For some reason unknown, he deferred the operation until the last moment. came apparent. One poor fellow, whose leg was severed by the cable, expired soon after the accident; and two others are seriously inwere lost and so little damage done. The employment by the stoppage of the New O. The accident instead of creating alarm will tend to inspire conportion of the line, where the cars pass, the The telegraph was set in motion instantly and the cars stopped. One of them got slightly one on board received any injury. The the dog bites its rope and goes rumbling about Worship be said. But though the Tramway has thus been demonstrated to be very safe, and its working to be most trustworthy, the accident just chronicled suggests one or two precautions | Referring to the abdustion of M. Vesin, the and changes which the Managers of the Company may perhaps deem worthy of con- time before he is set at liberty, as nothing imsideration. In the first place would it not be advisable, in future, to slacken the pace when going over the points? It would also diminish to a from San Francisco on the 21st May, says :minimum the chance of the pointsman making a mistake. Another recommendation is that all workmen engaged on the line should be compelled to leave it when the care are estraoized Mrs. Hetherington, and the men passing. Had ageing rule been in force yesterday morning there would have been no loss of life. Finally the question arises as to the trustworthiness of Chinese in the position of pointsmen. One thing is in their favour: they do not get drunk. But on the other hand they are very prone to become careless and apathetic over routine work. The "can do" spirit invades every form of Chinese work or enterprise. The duties of pointsman are very simple, and those on the Tramway could readily be grasped by a child; but the responsibility is serious: disaster. No accident of the kind has happened before, and probably never will again, but prevention is better than cure, and it would be well, if it be possible, to secure more reliable men. Would it be advisable for the year 1891. The number of in-patients He was paid 86 but demanded another dollar to procure experienced Indian pointsmen their own country? A correspondent of the New York Sun, writing Among the passengers on the steamer Oceanic, which arrived to-day from Yokohama, were Lieut. Hetherington and his wife and child.
